Japanese Garden Vocabulary List

Bonsai Trees:

Pruned in special styles to look old, maintained very carefully so they can grow in very shallow pots.

Koi:

Colorful, playful fish which, when reflected in the pond, looks like a drum.

Pagoda:

Stone pillars that are associated with Buddhism. The openings are used to hold candles which are lit at night.

Stone lantern:

Stone lanterns decorate a Japanese garden, are next to paths and used to light the way at night. They come in many different styles.

Stroll Garden:

Another style of Japanese garden that has paths that lead the visitor to many changing views as he/she moves through the garden. For example, rounding the corner, the visitor suddenly sees a waterfall.

Symbolism:

Symbols give meaning to an object, plant, or animal. For example, the two upright stones in the Zen Garden could symbolize a man and a woman standing on the shore of a river.

Viewing Stones (Suiseki):

Selected for their beauty and usually look like a mountain or have a very special shape.

Hanging Japanese Fish

A simple-to-make Japanese hanging koi (goldfish) made from paper and old magazines. This fish looks beautiful hanging from the ceiling. A classroom full of them is quite impressive!

Supplies needed:

- Construction paper
- Old magazines, catalogs, colored paper scraps, and aluminum foil scraps to cut up
- Glue
- Scissors
- Stapler
- Markers or crayons
- Hole punch
- 2 to 3 Crepe paper streamers (a few inches long)
- Some string or yarn

Draw a fish on a large piece of paper.

Put a second piece of paper under this piece of paper. Cut out two large, paper fish.

Cut out a lot of scrap paper and/or aluminum foil circles.
Use old, colorful magazines, catalogs, etc.

Decorate the fish's head, fins, and tail using crayons or markers.

Glue the circles onto both sides of the body of the fish. These are the fish's scales. (The fish is not symmetrical, so be sure that you glue circles onto the fish in such a way that when you staple the 2 sides together later on, the scales will be on the outside.)

Staple the two sides of the fish together, stapling the ends of crepe paper ribbons inside the tail.

Punch two holes on the fish's face. String some yarn through the holes. You now have a hanging koi (a Japanese carp).
